Major Mayville subdivision proposed

By MICHAEL DANIELS

Developer Ron Savage is proposing the largest subdivision in recent Bethel history.

In fact, it may be the largest such project ever.

Frank Vogt, who served on the Bethel Planning Board for more than a decade, and chaired it for many of those years, said he could think of no project — with the exception of the failed Bethel Station commercial development — which approached Savages proposal in overall scope.

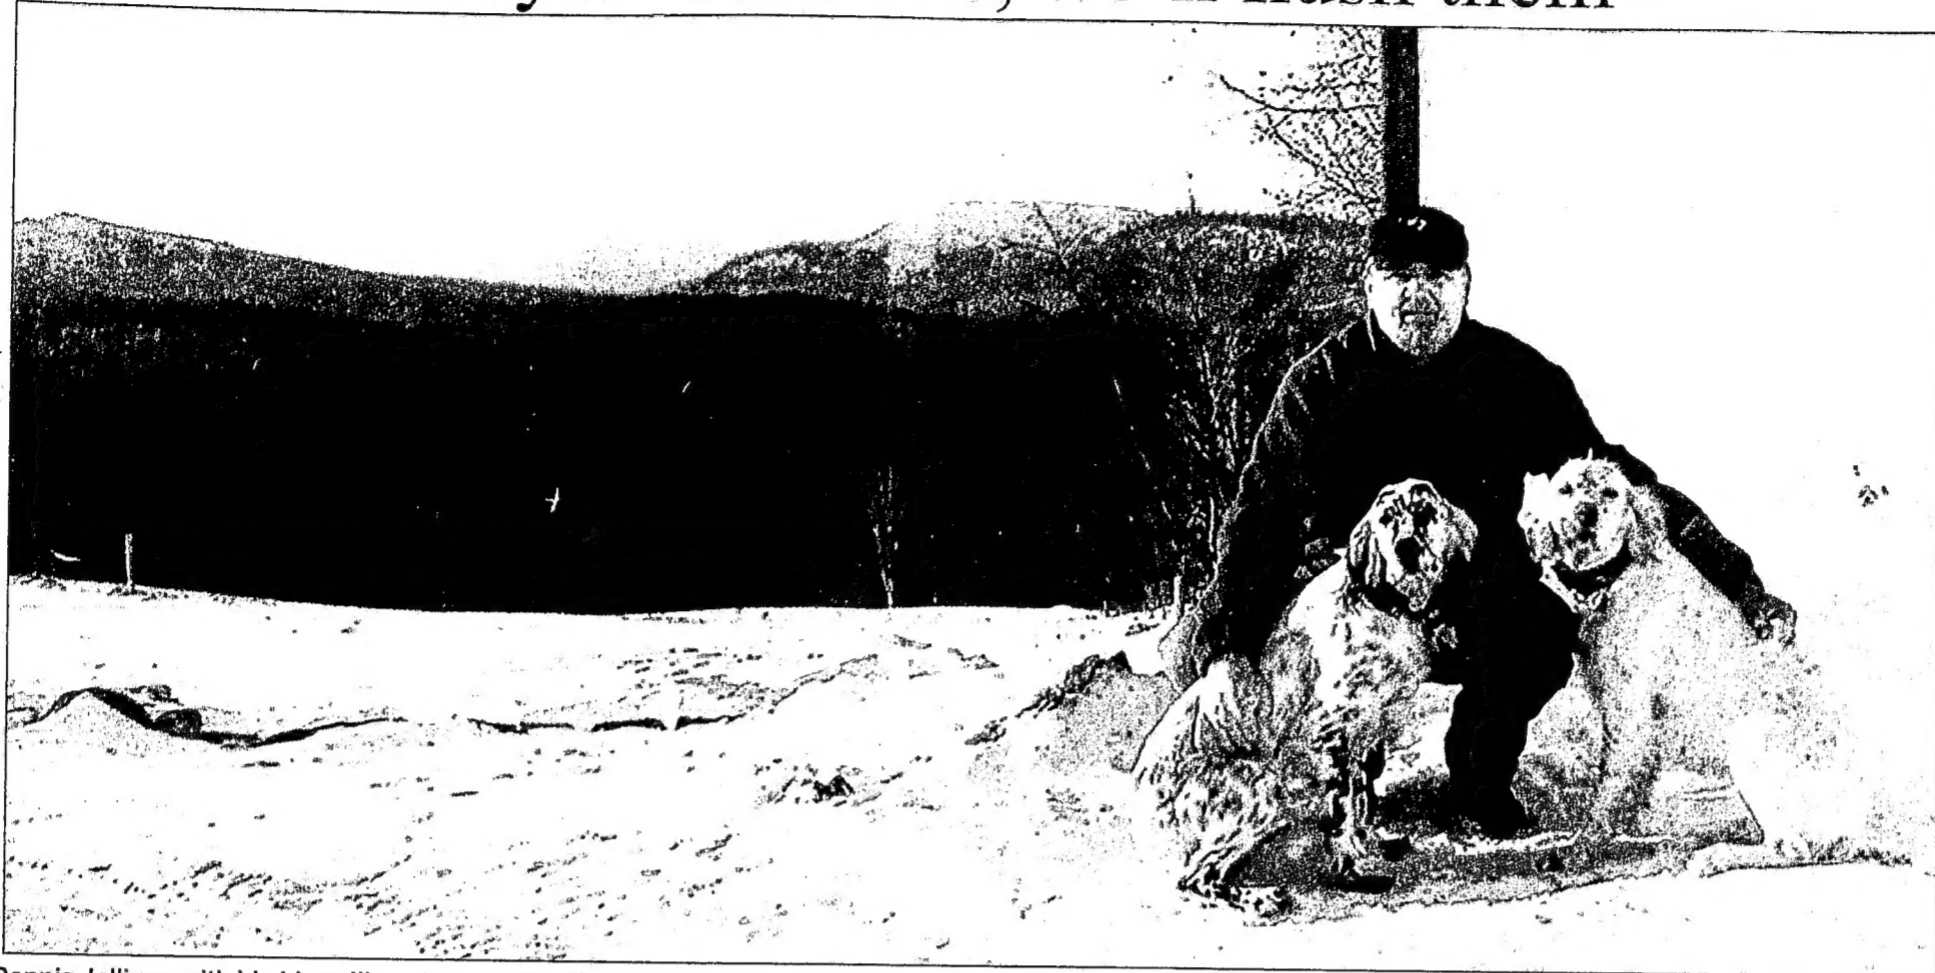

The 31-lot subdivision, to be named "Birch Woods," would be developed on a 120-acre parcel of land, located off the west side of the Mayville Road, a mile south of the Sunday River Road.

Savage, doing business with his brother Rick as Savage Land Development LLC, presented the plan to the Bethel Planning Board last Wednesday.

Following some initial confusion at the meeting regarding the developer's standing (the result of inaccuracies in the town's tax maps) the Planning Board accepted the application as complete.

The finding of completion is an initial step in the board's formal review process, which will resume at their regular meeting on Wednesday, Jan. 28, and will continue on Feb. 11 with a site walk (3 p.m.) and a public hearing (6:30 p.m.). Abutters are welcome to

Latest attraction for visitors: year-round hunting

By ALISON ALOISIO

Dennis Jellison and his Llewellyn setters, Kaina and Daisy Mae, are out to make a living on their private hunting preserve in Albany. But, said Jellison, they are also teachers who want to educate both the general public and potential young hunters about the sport.

Jellison owns 215 acres at the end of the Sawin Hill Road. He bought the property, along with the 18th-century farmhouse that sits on it, about a year and a half ago.

Since then he's been developing what he says is the third private hunting preserve within a 50-mile radius.

Jellison raises ring-necked pheasant, quail and chukar partridge in pens behind the farmhouse. He buys them as chicks from a company in the Midwest.

When hunters call to reserve time on the preserve, Jellison takes adult birds, often numbering between one and two dozen, and places them in thickets and other natural hiding places on his property. About 35 acres are designated as hunting area.

And contrary to what some people may conclude, he said, the birds are not "sitting ducks" for the hunters.

"These birds are very skittish of people," he said.

His only interaction, prior to releasing the birds, is feeding them, he said.

Once they're hiding in a thicket, the odds of a hunter shooting them are the same as in the wild, he said.

The hunting dogs find the birds, point, then flush them. "The birds are fast flyers," said Jellison.

'It's good for [youngsters] to know guns can be used for something other than what they see on the news every night.'

MAINE GUIDE DENNIS JELLISON

The only advantage for the hunters, he said, is that they know they're more likely to find a bird in the first place.

Because it's a private preserve, hunters can hunt any time of year, not just during bird season. Hunts are usually a half day long. He only allows three guns at a time on the property, and all hunters must wear orange.

He also posts his boundaries to let people know there is private hunting going on.

A variety of clients

A Maine native who lived in Waterford before buying the Albany property, Jellison is a master Maine guide who has hunted all his life.

Before this venture, he was a project manager for a lighting company, traveling all over New England.

He has been cultivating his hunting business through contacts with other area sporting businesses, as well as lodging places.

Last fall, for instance, a flyer in a nearby restaurant brought him several bear hunters who had gotten their bear, and were looking for something else to do.

Then there's the other end of the spectrum. "We get a lot of beginning shooters," he said.

Last summer, about 40 campers from a nearby boys' camp came over to try shooting at clay targets.

Young people, he said, are particularly adept at learning to shoot. "Almost all kids play video games," he said, "and it's all eye/hand coordination."

Jellison said he finds it particularly satisfying to teach the campers, many of whom live in the city or suburbs, about shooting.

Greenwood manager to retire

By MICHAEL DANIELS

Greenwood Town Manager Carol Whitman has decided it's time to slow down a bit and play a little more golf.

Whitman informed the selectmen Monday that she plans to retire. No firm date has been set, but Whitman said she hopes to be able to leave by mid-June.

A Vermont native who now lives in Norway, Whitman became town manager in March of 1998.

"I arrived right after the ice storm," she said.

The move to the Town Office was a short one for Whitman, who for the previous 15 years had worked across the street at Gilbert Manufacturing. Her last position at the company was controller and office manager.

When the time comes to leave, Whitman said, she'll miss the work and, especially, the people of Greenwood.

"I really enjoy the work itself," she said, "but the best

These days harassment at school is less likely to be overlooked

By ALISON ALOISIO

The SAD44 School Board last week approved an updated policy for defining and dealing with harassment and sexual harassment of students.

It's an issue that has generally been increasingly discussed and dealt with during the past decade or so, but that does not necessarily mean harassment itself is escalating, local officials said.

Because students are becoming more aware of what constitutes harassment, they are more willing to report it, Supt. Dave Murphy said.

"It's a good thing if they're willing to come forward," he said.

As described in the policy, "harassment includes, but is not limited to, verbal abuse based on race, color, sex, religion, sexual orientation,

'In cases of harassment, repeat offenders, or students who simply refuse to cooperate, could face suspension or even expulsion.'

ancestry or national origin, or disability," while sexual harassment "includes but is not limited to unwelcome sexual advances, requests for sexual favors or pressure to engage in sexual activity, physical contact of a sexual nature, gestures, comments, or other physical, written or verbal conduct that is gender-based, that interferes with a student's education."

Shawn Lambert, principal of Telstar middle and high schools, said there have been between five and 10 formal complaints of harassment incidents between students so far this year, all of them in the middle school.

"We try to respond to them within 24 hours," he said.

Not all of the complaints turn out to meet the legal definition of harassment. In some cases, "it's rudeness or bullying," often involving name calling, Lambert said.

In either case, school officials may issue a detention to the offending student, Lambert said, but they also try to educate both the student and his/her parents on the need to be sensitive to others.

Planners: town has only limited authority over rock crushing, composting operation

By MICHAEL DANIELS

Noise, dust, traffic, hours of operation, and the safety of a buried natural gas pipeline were the major concerns of a handful of neighbors who turned out for last week's public hearing on a proposed wood-waste processing, composting and rock-crushing operation planned for a site near the intersection of Route 26 and the Paris Road in Bethel (just west of Locke Mills village).

The Bethel Planning Board, which held the meeting, could not offer specific reassurances to the neighbors — in large part because the Maine Department of Environmental Protection, not the town, will have the primary responsibility for overseeing the site.

"The state has more power over this process than the town of Bethel does," said

CHIEF IS A PROFESSIONAL

To the Editor:

I have been reading recently about Police Chief Darren Tripp and his difficulties with the Town of Bethel. Based upon my experience with Darren during personal family situations, he has been firstly professional, and secondly very kind and supportive. He enforces the law fairly, but not with arrogance or malice. He will give someone a break, but not by breaking the law.

In my opinion he does a difficult job with professionalism, understanding and graciousness. I sincerely pray that God's will shall prevail during this upheaval and that both Chief Tripp and the town leaders can reach an amicable, or at least fair, resolution to this matter.

Thank you, Darren, for a job well done.

GET MORE INVOLVED, SELECTMEN

To the Editor:

I read in the Sun-Journal Jan. 12 about the 47 rules for the Bethel Police Chief. I don't believe that the rest of our town departments such as the fire, ambulance and road crew are being held as accountable as the Police Dept. has been in recent months. If they were, they could not get their physical work done by complying with 47 additional rules, some of which aren't even established policies. Our working department heads should have limited paperwork involving spreadsheets, etc., as they are most effective out in the field versus behind a desk.

It seems that most of the problems lately are with the town manager and the police chief. I believe conflicting personalities of the two are costing the taxpayers because lawyers are now involved, it is counterproductive and projects a negative image of our town and its citizens. It is common knowledge that the town manager's goal is to rid the town of a police department. That didn't take place last June so he is working to rid the department of the chief because he won't tear up tickets or play political football with the administration.

I personally feel that our selectmen are not involved enough in personnel issues. The current administrative policy excuses this so they close their eyes and ears so they can be an effective appeals board if it comes to that. If they were involved, chances are these types of issues wouldn't escalate to the proportions they are currently. The court system is the ultimate appeal anyway, our legal bills would be less, six heads are better than one, even a split board would be better than current policy. I suggested to the selectmen once that two of them should get involved with the police department issue and leave the other three (which would be a quorum) to be the Appeals Board, they briefly discussed it but declined to accept my suggestion.

To my knowledge the selectmen have not acted to change current policy so that they can get involved. I urge the taxpayers of Bethel to request the selectmen to get the policy changed and get involved.

I feel that Chief Tripp's side of the story is restricted in the papers. He was advised by his attorney at the time not to respond and tell his side. I think that this makes it look like he has done something terrible and is trying to hide it. I urge the citizens to keep an open mind and hopefully Bethel can get back to business soon.

CHANGE POLITICAL LANDSCAPE

To the Editor:

On Sunday afternoon, Feb. 8, the Republican Party of Bethel will hold its 2004 caucus at 4 p.m. in the meeting room of the Town Office on Main Street. Every two years political parties in towns across this nation hold meetings to elect officers and committee members. This is how the party system in our country works. Towns who participate can then help elect candidates for offices when, God forbid, the incumbent dies in office or resigns.

Too many people in this day and age are turned off from politics because they feel powerless to change things. Politics are local. To begin to change the political landscape, we have to start here and now. You can't sit back because the special interests will get what they want and that may not be what you want. Special interest groups run our state and the federal government. It won't change until we all get involved.

I urge all Republicans and other interested Independents and Democrats to attend our caucus. The town clerk will be at the town hall to register all voters who are not currently registered in this area or registered in any party or who might want to switch parties.

If we all get involved on the local level we can begin to change the political landscape.

WISH IT COULD HAVE BEEN RESOLVED OTHERWISE

To the Editor:

Imagine living next door to a neighbor with an identical home. Imagine it's the same in every way, identical floor plan, square footage, construction, even the lot is the same size. And imagine that your home is appraised and taxed at two and a half to three times that of your neighbor's home right next door.

Imagine that after you bought a home for $150,000 the next day it is appraised and taxed at two and a half to three times more based on the appraiser's belief that, someday, your home might sell for as much as $500,000.

Sound fair? Sound outrageous? You bet — but that is exactly the situation we, and our timeshare owners have been faced with over the past few years.

We hoped that by patiently and consistently presenting our case, to the town and the property tax appraisers, a reasonable solution would prevail without the need of taking legal action.

After all, fair is fair. Bethel is a small community, so who needs lawyers when reasonable people can simply work this out for ourselves.

Unfortunately, minds were made up, abatement requests were filed then promptly denied and nobody wanted to listen. At that point we and our timeshare owners had two alternatives: 1) either keep paying property taxes that are two and a half to three times that of our neighbor's or 2) take legal actions which are costing all of us a great deal to right these obvious wrongs.

I say "all of us" because win or lose, as one of Bethel's biggest taxpayers, we will ironically pay a large portion of the town's legal fees.

It is unfortunate that it has come to this. An enormous waste of resources that could be better spent on jobs and the public good will be spent on legal fees. Penalizing our resort, the owners and most of all the hundreds of current Bethel taxpayers (as well as the new timeshare owners) who will patronize all our businesses and recreational facilities is wrongheaded, mean spirited, and simply does not pass any test of fairness.

While it is still unclear how much will be spent by the time this issue is settled, one thing is for sure: the law firms will do just fine.

We truly wish it could have been resolved otherwise.

BIG MAINE TREES GOING, GOING ...

To the Editor:

When people think of forests with big old trees, we usually think of the West Coast. Here in New England, trees are naturally shorter, and loggers have been cutting the forests for hundreds of years, so many people think we never had big, old trees, or, if we did, they are now all gone.

Fortunately, that is not the case — yet.

Scientists from the Manomet Center for Conservation Sciences have recently found that stands of old trees still exist, scattered throughout the vast industrial forest of northern Maine. These are stands of trees ranging from a few acres to hundreds of acres in size that contain some trees 100 to 200 plus years old.

Scientists call these stands of big, old trees "late-successional" forest. These forests have not been significantly changed by fire, blow downs or harvesting for many decades.

Although no one yet knows how many big, old forests still exist in northern Maine, the ones that remain are rapidly disappearing. Manomet scientists predict that these stands will be functionally eliminated from the working forest within five or 10 years unless something is done to conserve them.

The reason these old forest stands still exist, sprinkled throughout the northern half of the state, is because they were last cut more than a half-century ago, and then only for a few tree species that had market value at the time. Today these stands have trees well over 100 years of age that survived the last harvest.

But times have changed. Now all tree species have market value. Now virtually every acre of Maine's forest is accessible by logging roads. Now, many timber companies believe that it is a losing proposition to grow trees past 70 years of age. And thus, these stands left over from another time have been vanishing, quietly, without notice.

Fortunately, ecologists are beginning to understand the special ecological qualities of old forests in New England. In Scandinavia, many plant and animal species are threatened or endangered because of the loss of older forests. Many of the most vulnerable species are not charismatic, or even recognizable but they are critical to a healthy forest. They are mosses and lichens and fungi that seem to prefer to grow on large, old, living and dead trees.

Over the past 50 years, harvesting practices in Maine's North Woods have tended to take the older trees, leaving a younger forest — what some have dubbed a "teenage" forest. In these younger forests species that depend on big, old trees become threatened, then endangered, and begin to disappear from the landscape. In addition to the ecological problems, creating endangered species can create a whole new set of challenges.

To their credit, some of Maine's major forest landowners have provided initial funding to Manomet, to develop an index to help foresters identify older forest stands in the field. To use the index, foresters will need to learn about a handful of easily identified mosses and lichens. They will then be able to "score" the stand indicating whether it contains a lot of the characteristics of a big, old forest or only a few. Once foresters have scored the stand, they can adjust harvesting plans to avoid harvesting high-scoring stands, or cut them in a way that protects the value of the stand.

Although we have had many battles with the forest industry in Maine over the years, some of which continue today, I am hopeful on this particular conservation issue.

The rest of this story, of course, is yet to be written; the outcome will depend on the fate of Maine's remaining old forests in the next few years. Hopefully, we will be able to say: going, going — saved.

Birch Woods

participate in the site walk as well as the public hearing.

An application for Birch Woods has also been submitted to the Maine Department of Environmental Protection, according to Darryl Brown of Main-Land Development Consultants of Livermore Falls.

Brown, who made the formal presentation to the Planning Board, said a decision from the DEP is expected in two or three months.

The documentation submitted for the project last week is extensive. The DEP application — which forms the basis for the application to the town — is four inches thick and contains 25 sections.

The fee for the Bethel application, $3,100, was paid at Wednesday's meeting.

Access and exercise Access to the subdivision will be by a road located where a private driveway (see photo below) currently meets Route 2.

The one-mile road servicing the individual properties will be built to town specifications, Brown said, but the developers intend for it to remain a private road.

The road will be maintained by the property owners association, he said, and membership in the association will be mandatory for those who purchase lots.

Utilities lines will be run underground, Brown said.

One amenity of the development will be a half-mile walking path, which will follow easements through several of the properties.

Much of the route will pass through the natural, wooded buffer between the developed portion of the parcel and Twitchell Brook.

Savage said the path would appeal to the upscale retirees he sees as a potential market for the development.

"A lot of interest in Bethel is from retired, active seniors, and they want a safe place to recreate," he told the board.

DEVELOPMENT ENTRANCE—The entrance to the proposed 31-lot Birch Woods subdivision would be located where the private driveway to the left meets Route 2, about a mile south of the Sunday River Road. The sight line to the north, shown here, is 960 feet, which is 30 feet short of the state-mandated minimum. Developers say the state has agreed to waive the difference, and they plan to ask the town, which follows the state requirement, to do the same.

Mill building collapses, burns

RUMFORD — A 100-year-old maintenance building at the MeadWestvaco paper mill collapsed and then burned Tuesday morning. Area residents heard an explosion about 4:30 a.m., and then saw flames that quickly climbed to 100 feet above the structure. About 100 firefighters from eight towns responded to the fire. Two mill employees were treated and released from Rumford Hospital after they suffered smoke inhalation. No other injuries were reported, but more than 300 mill employees were evacuated. The fire was brought under control by about 9 a.m. The building collapse was attributed to a buildup of ice, and the explosions to acetylene and oxygen tanks stored there. The mill was back in operation later in the afternoon. Authorities said it was fortunate the collapse happened at the hour that it did. At 8 a.m., maintenance workers report to the building.

Fire destroys trailer

BETHEL — A morning fire last Tuesday destroyed a trailer on the Annis Road owned by Ruel Swain. The tenant, Jeremy Irons, was not at home when the fire broke out around 7:30 a.m., according to Jim Young, Bethel fire chief. Firefighters from Bethel, Newry and Greenwood responded. Young said a space heater had been in use at the home, but he did not know if it could have caused the blaze.

Voters surveyed on Town Meeting

WEST PARIS — Selectmen are waiting for the results of a survey sent out to residents asking them when the annual Town Meeting should take place. Until 1996, it was held on the first Tuesday of March. But it was changed to Saturday that year, because a statewide referendum coincided with the usual day. The meeting has been held on Saturdays since. The issue came up for discussion last year, when some residents who celebrate the Sabbath on Saturday asked the meeting be changed back to Tuesday. Selectmen voted then to make the change, and put an article on the warrant asking voters their preference. But last month the current board reversed that decision. Then this month, they decided to send out the survey, which is due back in the Town Office Feb. 2. When the results are determined, the date for the 2004 meeting will be announced.

Newry man wins sweepstakes

NEWRY — Nicholas Lambert won a FleetBoston Financial eight-state quarterly sweepstakes last week, in the form of a $20,000 certificate of deposit. His name was drawn from about 25,000 entries from Maine, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Connecticut, New York, Rhode Island, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

July 4th events discontinued

RUMFORD — A street festival and fireworks display that has brought thousands of people to the area for the past eight years will be discontinued. The Moontide Water Festival Committee announced last week it would disband. Some members have said the effort required to raise the $25,000 needed to fund the event is too much.

Teen dies in cabin fire

MINOT — A fire that destroyed a log cabin last Saturday claimed the life of a 19-year-old woman, according to state officials. Danielle Damon's body was found in the rubble of the structure after the fire was extinguished. Firefighters did not realize anyone was inside, but they said the cabin was fully involved in flames when they arrived. Damon had worked the night before, and was apparently asleep when the fire broke out. Officials said it was unlikely the cause could be determined, because there was no evidence left. Damon's boyfriend, James LeCompte, 21, was out trying to find wood for the woodstove, the officials said. The cabin's furnace had broken down Friday.

Small earthquake in granite state

HENNIKER, N.H. — A minor earthquake rattled southern New Hampshire Tuesday, prompting dozens of calls to police from residents worried about everything from explosions at their homes to terrorists. "There was a major shaking and loud, loud, loud boom," said Patricia Finnerty, secretary at the Hopkinton Police Department who answered many of the calls. "We haven't heard of any damage. Just a lot of scared people." The U.S. Geological Survey said the quake, at 12:11 p.m., was a magnitude 2.2, and was centered 15 miles west of Concord, in the Henniker-Hopkinton area.

Skiers survive night in cold

KILLINGTON, Vt. — Two Massachusetts teenagers who skied out of bounds at Killington spent a frigid night in the woods last Wednesday before one hiked to safety and the other was spotted by a helicopter and rescued, cold but alive. Trevor Orlowski, 18, of East Freetown, Mass., suffered from frostbite to his feet. Brent Romagnolo, 19, of Assonet, Mass., was treated at the hospital for frostbite and later released. "It's amazing they made it out," said Mendon Constable Ted Pratt. "It's one of the coldest nights we've had in years." The two got lost on the back side of the mountain at about 1:30 p.m., and their families in Massachusetts called authorities around midnight, said Lt. Donald Patch, head of the Vermont State Police search-and-rescue team. About two dozen search-and-rescue personnel conducted a search. Around 3 a.m. the Vermont National Guard was called. The temperature was 26 degrees below zero. Romagnolo walked out of the woods at about 5 a.m., Patch said. Gregg Stahle, who lives near the mountain, said he was asleep when he heard a scratching sound on a window and went to check it out. "I thought maybe it was a cat," he said. Instead, he found Romagnolo, wearing a thick winter jacket, ski pants and boots, and frost-covered gloves, shivering outside.

From the Bethel Police Log:

Wednesday, Jan. 14

At 9:45 a.m., police heard a loud explosion from the area of Church Street. The officer checked the area, and initial observations were negative. He spoke with a subject who was trying to start his truck. The subject said the truck had backfired.

At 10:15 a.m., while on the way to the courthouse in South Paris, the officer observed a car parked on Route 26 in South Woodstock with its flashers on. Because of the severe cold, the officer stopped and checked for occupants. There were none, and he reported the vehicle to the Sheriff's Office.

At 3:14 p.m., police received information on two male subjects wanted by the Rumford Police Department. One was armed with a handgun and the other with a metal pipe.

Friday, Jan. 16

At 4:28 p.m., police responded to assist the Bethel Fire Department with a report of smoke in a West Bethel Road residence. The officer and the resident found the smoke was coming from the furnace, which had a burned transformer. The officer stood by while a thermo check was done.

At 4:49 p.m., police responded to a vehicle fire. When the officer arrived, the fire was already out, and no one was injured. He provided traffic control for the Fire Department.

Whitman

thing about the job is the people. Greenwood is a wonderful town to work for."

Well, not all the time. Whitman, who is no shrinking violet, readily admits there is one time of year she dreads -- the Ides of March, which bring the approach of Town Meeting.

Part of her job is to open the meeting, and here stage fright raises its ugly head.

"I just can't do it," she said. "I go deaf, dumb and blind. I can't read; I can't do anything."

Despite this once-a-year handicap, Selectman Ivan Roberts said Whitman would be hard to replace.

"She's a great lady. Not one person in town can say she hasn't given her all to the town," Robert said. "You just can't find them like that."

Fred Henderson, chairman of the selectmen, said the board will work with Whitman to develop a process for finding a replacement.

Whitman is only Greenwood's second town manager. The first, a Massachusetts woman, Liz LaValette, was appointed in March 1996 but served less than a year before being indicted in the Bay State for stealing $40,000 from the town where she had previously worked.

It was later found that in her short stay here LaValette had found time to embezzle $20,000 from Greenwood.

"It's good for them to know guns can be used for something other than what they see on the news every night," he said.

Jellison said he stresses gun safety with the youngsters from the start.

He said he also gets many father/son customer combinations, and the son is often inexperienced.

And, said Jellison, many of his clients come only to shoot the clay targets. "There are a lot of people who like to shoot, but not hunt," he said. He also offers other activities and services on his property.

He will train hunting dogs for clients. And a stocked trout pond provides an opportunity to fly fish.

Anyone interested can check him out on his Web site at www.setterspoint.com, or call 824-8824.

For people wanting to know more about the sport in general, or who may have concerns about it, Jellison suggests e-mailing him.

"I'm willing to answer questions (on people's views), good and bad," he said.

who simply refuse to cooperate, could face suspension or even expulsion.

Parents also have the option to seek a temporary restraining order from a court to keep an offender away from their child.

But, emphasizes, Lambert, that is a separate

Murphy said school officials and staff "try to be proactive. But it's also up to the student to work with them, and let them know if their voices aren't being heard."

Vending machine delivers wood to those who don't care to cut their own

ASSOCIATED PRESS

During a snowstorm four years ago, Judy Halsey of Platteville, Colo., had a hankering for a crackling fire and a quiet night at home.

She sent her husband, Len, to the store to pick up a bundle of firewood. They lived in an apartment and didn't have space to store large amounts of wood.

When he arrived at the store that snowy eve, the store manager was restacking the firewood on the sidewalk. Soggy firewood was placed off to the side so customers could take the dry wood at the center.

"When people want wood, they don't take the wood off the top," Len Halsey said.

"People want dry wood."

Halsey, seeing the store manager's problem, wondered if there was a way to keep firewood dry while keeping it accessible to customers.

Today, Halsey is president of The Wood Box Inc., a company that manages his invention: a machine that dispenses firewood on demand. His first Wood Box is located at an apartment complex in Longmont.

"It's kind of like a candy machine that drops wood," said apartment manager Sandy Swenson. "This is a large benefit to the residents: to get wood and not have to leave the property."

The Wood Box machine is powered with solar panels. It costs nothing to have the unit on the property, Halsey said. He restocks the wood more than once a week.

When a customer pays $4 for a wood bundle, a light shines above one of the machine's 16 small doors. The customer opens the door and removes dry firewood from the compartment.

Each vending machine holds 148 bundles of wood. There is a mechanism inside that senses when more wood needs to be sent down ramps into empty compartments.

Halsey, 64, said he doesn't expect one machine to pay for his retirement, but several might.

"A machine isn't going to make you rich, maybe $800 to $900 a month," he said. "But if you have 10 of them out there ... If you have 100 of them, the numbers go berserk."

Halsey has been building and fixing things all his life. He fixes his own cars and tractors. When he was younger, he was an electrician. A few months ago, he finished building the first Wood Box machine with his own two hands on the farm near Platteville, where he and his wife now live.

He is currently negotiating a deal to manufacture more machines. Several ski resorts, including Vail, Aspen, Steamboat Springs and Keystone, have expressed interest, Halsey said.

"In the spring, when firewood season is over, I'm going to bring units to campgrounds," he said. "Some areas are very interested."

But Halsey is concerned that the company will not have the finances to continue expanding.

"At this point in time, I'll own the machines and stock them myself, but if I can't raise the money privately, I'll sell the machines," he said.

Hearing

Planning Board member Jan Baker. "If the DEP is overseeing it, that's wonderful. It means that they're the watchdog over their part of it. They're doing their job and we can just hope to look into your concerns as best we can, but they have the ultimate say."

Board Chairman Al Cressy countered: "On the other hand, if we feel it's within the ordinance purview we can be stricter than the state. But," he acknowledged, "I think usually we bow to the DEP for that."

DEP has already approved the operation, which will be located on up to 35 of the site's 57 acres. But Daryl Brown of Main-Land Development Consultants, who presented the application for owner Keith Durgin, told those present that most of the activity will be confined to six acres near the center of the parcel, in order "to mitigate any possible impact to neighboring properties."

To further mitigate the impact, Brown said, earthen berms will be placed around the boundaries of the operation and around the rock crusher.

But Bird Hill resident Ed Yasko worried about noise rising above the operation, unimpeded by the berms.

Bird Hill Road runs along a ridge near the site. "Noise has a tendency to drift up," Yasko said, and crushing rocks and grinding stumps "is a pretty noisy business."

The planners indicated that noise is an issue they will look into, and that the final conditions of approval for the operation will probably include decibel limits and restrictions on hours of operation.

Other nearby residents worried about the possible effect of vibrations from heavy trucks and the rock crusher on the nearby Portland Natural Gas Transmission System pipeline.

A letter from PNGTS to Main-Land regarding the project called for the digging up the fill over the pipeline where trucks would be crossing it and replacing it with material of a specific nature. But Cressy was also worried about vibrations from the crusher.

He suggested Main-Land write PNGTS and ask for another letter, "to make sure they know they are dealing with a rock crusher."

As for traffic and its various impacts, including noise, Baker said this was another area where the town would have to yield to the state's oversight, or lack thereof.

"Unfortunately there is no state standard for traffic," she said. "We just have to accept it for what it is. It's oftentimes unfortunate, but it's something we have to live with."

Andover

by Joan Stinson-Carney

The Kings-ton Trio's song "Charlie on the MTA" starts out with the words: "These are the times that try men's souls." Well guess what? These are the times that try men's and women's souls. If I ever complain about the weather next August, you have my permission to shoot me. It's only the middle of January and I am so, so, so sick of winter already. I really truly hate snow, ice, and cold, bitter winds especially when I don't have the money for a ticket to a warmer place. Oh well, it could be worse, couldn't it? Couldn't it?

The following list of people need your kind thoughts, prayers, and in some cases get well cards. Former Andover resident Nancy Bailey Young, who now lives in Bethel, has just had major surgery. Former Andover resident Robert Akers, who also lives in Bethel, is fighting cancer. Orville Meisner of East Andover is at home recuperating from surgery, and Andover resident James Littlefield and East Andover resident Arthur Hutchins will be having surgery soon.

I attended Rex Thurston's funeral last Saturday. I want to thank the Reverend Jane Rich for her words of wisdom. They were very comforting for me, because I lost my husband, John, to ALS fourteen years ago. He was the same age as Rex when he died and Rex's passing brought back so many memories for me. Just listening to Jane helped me so much. Thanks, Jane.

I am really getting excited about the upcoming Bicentennial Winter Carnival Weekend. Things are coming together nicely, thanks to the hard work of the committees, especially Barbara Hayden, Leon Akers, and all the other members. Make sure you are around for the 28th and 29th of February to enjoy it all.

There is still time to take out nomination papers for selectman and SAD44 School Board representative. We have a different thing happening this year. There are two candidates running for the selectman's position. Laura Hutchins, the incumbent, and Jerry Savitch, who has courageously thrown his hat into the ring. Usually we are lucky to have one person agree to run, so it ought to be an interesting election. The only comment I'm going to make is "Let the best man win." (Selectman, get it?)

Speaking of elections, and I know I shouldn't, because talking about politics is a big no, no with me, but I'm sorry, I am so sick of the Presidential Election already I can barely stand it. The ads that they show for the New Hampshire Primary voters should stay in New Hampshire don't you think? Why should we Mainers have to see them? Don't they know we have borders for that purpose? And tell me, do you really care how people in Iowa feel? I mean it isn't even an election there, just a lot of poor people being overwhelmed by politics. I'm beginning to feel that the game of Eeeny, Meenie, Miney, Moe might be a good thing right about now. (Just kidding.) How about Ted Kennedy giving up the chance to personally see the Pats win their way to play in the Super Bowl, so he could politic for Kerry? Talk about loyalty. Oh by the way — Go Pats. See 'ya.

Upton

by Eleanor LeComte

Ten above zero feels like a heat wave after a week of 20 to 30 below.

The Upton Strollers, accompanied by their dogs, now are back strutting their stuff on the road. The icy winds of the past have left us temporarily making for a more comfortable existence.

The snowmobilers are back out in force. Trails were used by many over the weekend. Errol was a "madhouse" of snowmobilers.

The State Line Snowmobile Club held a round (square) table meeting at the Ladies Aid Building on Saturday, Jan. 17. Nineteen members were present. Several new members were welcomed into the group. It promises to be a fine organization for years to come. The club members wish to thank Simone Lavallee for having the hall cozy and warm on a cold Upton night.

The Cards and Pool Group chose the Eagle Mountain House in Jackson, N. H., for brunch on Sunday, Jan. 18. The brunch was more like a dinner, with many delicious dishes served. Those attending were Sue and Larry Nelson, Gene and Sandy Wixom, Joy Yarnell, Richard and Ellie LeComte and Liz and Walter Stanczyk. Liz Stanczyk organized the occasion. The Eagle Mountain House is a grand old hotel situated in a very scenic area. There were many cross-country skiers of all ages enjoying the countryside.

Evelyn and Jim Kenney have returned from a midwinter trip to beautiful downtown Haynesville, where if you sneezed they could hear you in Houlton. It is that quiet.

The deer are ever present and have become quite an attraction at 4 p.m. Onlookers have learned to come slowly down the hill to avoid making the deer bolt.

The doe with the tumor (or abscess) on its cheek is faring very well. Her eye is open now. She manages to get in and get her share of the apples and deer chow. The doe with the broken foreleg seems to get around as well as the others, but I'll bet those howling coyotes have their eye on her. The "Boss," that big buck, is more or less a loner. The other bucks respect his violent kick that says "don't mess with the big guy."

The birds had a very rough time in the cold last week. The doves huddled in front of the garage door puffing out their feathers. The chickadees could care less as they make repeated visits to the feeder. Around noon the squawking blue jays land for their fair share, and fair they are not.

The "Bird of the Week" is the blue jay, so beautiful against the pure white snow.

East Bethel

by Nancy Mercer

Alder River Grange will meet on Jan. 23 at Lynn Mason-Courtney's home on Tyler

Street with a 6 p.m. soup and the meeting at 7 p.m.

Roger and Louise Twitchell, Millie Jackson and Dot Bartlett attended the Bethel Senior Citizens Club meeting at the Sudbury Inn on Jan. 14.

Victor Coolidge hosted a boiled dinner on Jan. 18 with his daughters, Sarah, Jessica and Victoria, and Earl Coolidge, Mary Bean and Arthur Hertell as guests.

Neil Olson attended a baseball convention recently at Mohegan Sun in Connecticut. A very fast way of losing your money was provided. He won.

Hopefully the very cold stuff is gone. Have a nice week. God Bless the Troops.

Hanover

by Clem Worcester

Another week has slipped by with cold temperatures dominating activities in the area. Once again the daily highs were more like -10 and the lows reported have been as low as -24. Brisk winds blew the cold into homes making the living room feel like the inside of the refrigerator.

Frozen water pipes have been a common complaint along with automobiles that do not start or run very well.

One young lady complained that her car heater didn't work, so her old man had to take her to work in his truck. Most everyone has been staying right at home to avoid the cold weather, so there is not a lot of news to report. We have not heard of any fights or even many complaints.

A few snow squalls have kept the snowplows working and the road at times have been slippery. Tuesday night and Wednesday morning rapidly dropping temperatures along with snow flurries caused slick roads resulting in several automobile collisions and rollover accidents in the area.

Barbara Kaulback reports that she is feeling better and is pleased to be home again. She has expressed appreciation for the get-well wishes and other assistance she had while ill.

East Stoneham

by Eleanor Nelson

Hi readers. Are you keeping warm these days and nights?

We are now, since we got Marcel to thaw us out and keep the heat up a bit higher.

I am having fun learning the computer, thanks to son Genie. I didn't think he would have the patience with me, but he has so far. I think he will need a lot more. Anyway, so far so good.

There is not much news this week, except the weather, which has been really cold and freezing.

I heard today that Thelma Damm is home from the hospital. Also, Carole Nelson is home from the hospital.

Matthew Nelson and Molly Nelson have been home from their studies in Boston and will soon be going back to them.

Troy and Eric Nelson and friends went to the Nelson's camp at Wilsons Mills this past weekend. They found it pretty cold, but good traveling.

Ice fishing has started and the icehouses have appeared on all the lakes. That's a fun sport, but hope they all will be extra careful.

Johnny Files from Oxford called on Frances Grant on Sunday and helped do a few chores for her.

Albert Nelson found a receipt the other day where he worked 40 hours and his paycheck was $38 from C.N. Brown Co. I think it was year 1950. How would you like to survive on that?

The Way I See It

by Sharon Bouchard

Sharon Bouchard's column is published by special arrangement with the Advertising Department of this newspaper.

The political season is officially underway. I know, it seems like it has been going on for quite some time, but the Iowa caucuses this week actually marked the kick off for the campaign for the office of the President.

The Republicans and Democrats won't really square off until the conventions are held in the summer, but that certainly won't prevent all parties involved from taking pot shots at each other.

And, of course, the political talking heads on all the various radio and television talk shows will do a lot more than take a few cheap shots at all the various candidates. They cruise along on the non-election years trying to sound like authorities with all the answers. Along comes an election year and any solid facts will be twisted and bent, denied or dismissed if necessary to suit their needs. As Ronald Reagan once said, "Facts are stupid things."

The alternative party candidates are as of yet unknown, but there will be some presidential hopefuls surfacing later in the season. I have no doubt that there will be someone running as an Independent, a Green, a Libertarian and probably a few newly formed parties to make things a little more interesting.

Children are often told at a young age that they can grow up to be President of the United States and this year there will be a good number of adults who will try to do just that.

What I don't quite understand is why anyone wants to be the President. It has to be one of this country's worst jobs and it's temporary at that.

By the very nature of the two plus party system everyone that didn't vote for you will be against you before you're even sworn in. If the West Wing is at all accurate, the hours are terrible. Your private life is put on hold until you are no longer the President and everything you say becomes public information and recorded for history.

I know the office of the President is the most powerful in the country, but that much power is an awesome responsibility. Bill Clinton is quoted as saying, "Politics gives guys so much power they tend to behave badly around women." I think he learned that to be true.

Sometimes the President has to use his position of power when it's necessary to impose a mandate on the people as in the case of Ronald Reagan when he said, "There is a mandate to impose a voluntary return to traditional values." I think he was being sincere when he said that and as Harry S. Truman said, "Always be sincere, even when you don't mean it."

The President and the Vice-President have to know a lot about a lot of different things. The economy, for example, is very complicated for anyone to understand, but the top two in office have to know a lot more about it than the average person. Past Vice-President Dan Quayle showed that he had a very strong grasp of the U.S. economy when he said, "We lead in exporting jobs." He was right about that of course. And Calvin Coolidge made a very true and astute statement when he said, "When more and more people are thrown out of work, unemployment results."

It has to be one of this country's worst jobs and it's temporary at that.

Ronald Reagan addressed the unemployment issue in a speech by announcing, "Now, we are trying to get unemployment to go up, and I think we are going to succeed."

Dan Quayle had a tremendous amount of faith in the first President Bush's ability to deal with a failing economy. He said, "The President is going to lead us out of this recovery. It will happen." He was right about this too.

During the Eisenhower administration the country enjoyed a pretty stable economic situation and no one appreciated that more than Dwight Eisenhower himself. He was very proud to tell the American people, "Things are more like they are now than they ever were before."

George W. Bush understands what an important role the oil industry plays in stabilizing the economy and is very concerned about it. In a speech about the need to increase the production of domestic oil President Bush said, "It is clear our nation is reliant upon big foreign oil. More and more of our imports come from overseas."

At least President Bush the younger has a good handle on the budget and understands one when he sees it. "It's clearly a budget. It's got a lot of numbers on it." A lot of numbers indeed.

A President has to be honest that's for sure. We know that George Washington could not tell a lie and Abraham Lincoln was nicknamed Honest Abe because of his honest reputation. We also know that there are dishonest people that do make it into government as Richard Nixon so succinctly pointed out when he said, "Sure there are dishonest men in local government. But there are dishonest men in national government too." I guess he knew what he was talking about.

Bill Clinton was very honest when he was asked if he ever used marijuana. He confessed that he had tried it once in college but qualified it a bit by saying, "I didn't like it and I didn't inhale." And President Bush the younger was extremely honest about his younger days when asked about a drunk driving charge in Maine. "When I was young and irresponsible, I was young and irresponsible." He also said "I think we can agree, the past is over." And so it is.

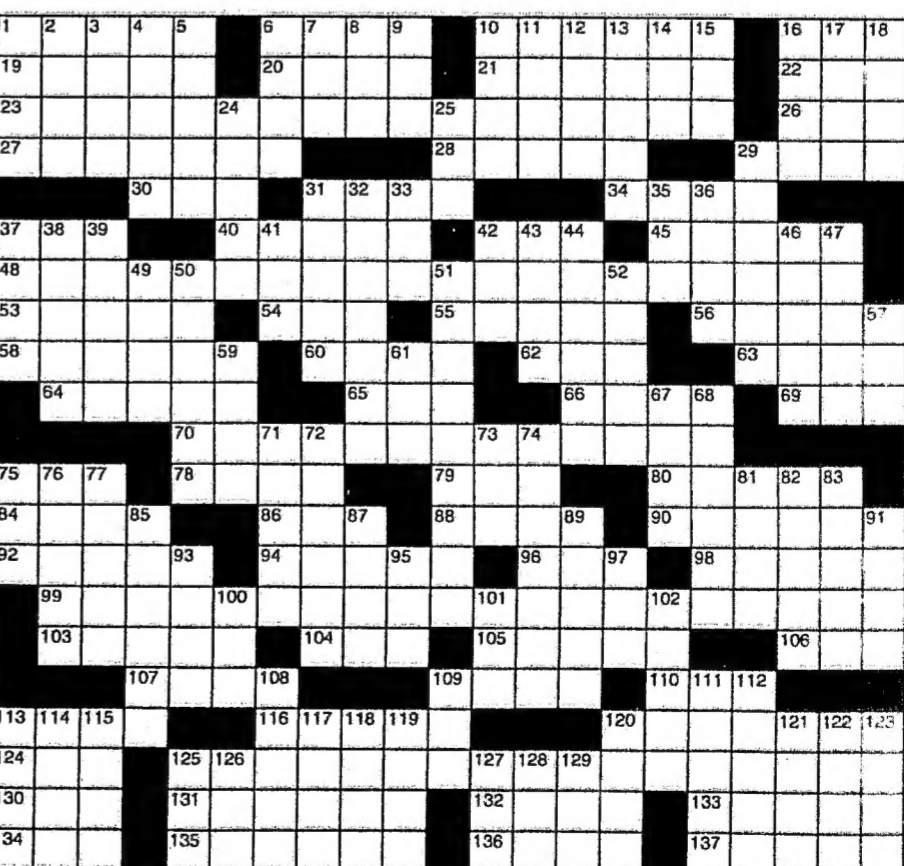

Now it's time to move on to another Presidential election. We will be bombarded with campaign ads by a lot of candidates making a lot of promises that can't be kept. It is not as simple as the candidates make it sound and they cannot do most of what they think they can.

Being the President of the United States is the hardest and most thankless job in the country. The way I see it a person has to be a bit off to even contemplate going into public office at all. Dan Quayle put it better than anyone when he said, "People that are really very weird can get into sensitive positions and have tremendous impact on history." And so it goes.

West Paris

by Bertha DeHaas

Greetings from a very frigid West Paris. It was -20 degrees again this morning. Brrr is the only word to describe these temperatures. I guess AAA has really been busy starting cars and taking new batteries to others. It sure is hard on vehicles when it is this cold. Makes us older folks remember what winters were like when we were growing up. Think we'll all be thankful when spring arrives. The seed catalogues have started to come in and oh, how good those flowers and vegetables look. It gives us hope.

Back on Dec. 30, I had the privilege of going to the home of Aili Benson to visit with and photograph five generations, namely great-great-grandmother, Aili Benson of West Paris; great-grandmother,

D.B.A: Phoenix House and Well
The Phoenix House and Well, at Sunday River Ski Resort, offers two restaurant/bar combinations under one roof. The Well, on the first floor, features a lounge menu with choices such as burgers and chicken tenders. Upstairs is the Phoenix House, where the roof-to-cathedral-ceiling windows look out on the slopes of Sunday River. Phoenix offers a fine dining menu that include steak, fresh seafood and rack of lamb. Manager Phil Everett describes the atmosphere as "casual fine dining, with an emphasis on good quality food and good quality service." He hopes to attract a clientele of both tourists and local people by offering flexibility in menu and pricing. There will be beer and food specials on most weekends. The full lounge menu is available every night until midnight, seven days a week, and the bar is open until 1 a.m. every night. Phoenix House and Well opened at Christmas for the winter season. Everett said he anticipates PHW will open for summer seasons sometime in the future, and also be available for functions such as weddings and receptions. (824-2222) meeting scheduled for Jan. 15 at my home was changed to Jan. 22 due to the extremely cold weather and illness. If Mother Nature is more agreeable, will see you at my home at 7:30 p.m. on Jan. 22.

Hope to see you all next week. Keep well, keep warm and drive safely.

West Paris

The sun porch made it up to the freezing mark today with the sun shining brightly. This is the warmest it has been for a month. Last year it did not go below this mark. The drive is still snow and ice. Usually a day of sun will melt it all away. Friday afternoon, as I am writing this, the snow is blowing briskly around the house and across the road. Last week, when I drove to Norway, I hit two whiteouts on Route 26. It has been way below zero degrees for so long that the walking group has not been out for over a week. What a winter.

Of my five amaryllises three are budded. The dark red one has three buds on one stem that will open any day. They did not bloom in time for Christmas but will be extra special with the snow for a background. I do not understand why some bloom and some do not. They are all treated the same. Three of them were my mother's and moved in with me in 1986. All of the bulbs appear healthy.

Ivan Proctor has been discharged from Stephens Memorial Hospital and is recovering at Market Square Nursing Home. He expects to go home in a short time.

Arlene Farr is at the Norway Rehabilitation Center in Norway and would appreciate cards from her friends.

On Jan. 25, at the West Paris Universalist Church the Rev. Joy Gasta will speak on "The Golden Rule, Part II. What Are Your Stories?" Church is at 9 a.m. with Jim Burke as organist.

At the January meeting of the Woodstock Historical Society, John Hathaway spoke on canning jars or fruit jars. He sells them on E-bay and ships them everywhere. He says size and color affect value. A mistake on one also increases value. Some 100 years old sold for $1,000 and the most valuable he ever had went for $10,000.

He begins selling at $3 each on the Internet. However, Ball and Atlas jars bring very little and are sold in bulk. He often ships UPS. The next meeting will be at the Town Hall Conference Room and will feature a video, "Light Spirit, Light Houses of the Coast of Maine," by Jack Perkins.

South Woodstock

by Andrea Wing
Much sympathy goes out to the family and friends of Margaret Tuell King, who passed away Jan. 4 in New York. Margaret was born Jan. 6, 1908, and would have been 96 years old. She studied and became a nurse and later married Hayes King and moved to New York. She had one son, Richard, who survives. She leaves sisters, Helen Estes of South Paris, Barbara Cash of Norway and Claribel Poland of South Woodstock. A brother, Gilman Tuell, died a few years ago. She was the daughter of George and Lillian Tuell and resided in this area in her teen years and moved to New York where she lived until her death.

Also, sympathy to all who knew Vera Buck. Vera lived here in South Woodstock most of her life. She leaves two daughters, grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

I spent part of an afternoon visiting with my sister-in-law and brother, Joan and Phelps Poland. We got caught up on news of family, etc. Joan baby-sits her great-grandson, Logan Bru, in the afternoons when he gets out of school. Kellie Record and I went shopping one cold, cold day. It was miserable just getting to the car from the store. Kellie has an automatic starter and started the car before we left the store so the car was nice and warm when we got in — quite a gadget.

Cold weather seems to stay around too long. It was 20 degrees below zero here this morning and others were even colder. Hope everyone is careful with fires in their homes.

It says volumes about

Mainers when 20-25 degrees seems like a heat wave. We all adjusted so well to the frigid below-zero weather that the 20s feel like spring. In any case, I like it best when the sun is shining and reflects off the ice and snow as if they are hiding jewels.

Hard to believe that it is already the third week of 2004. Baldacci will have given his State of the State by the time you are reading this column.

Iowa has voted for the presidential candidate and soon New Hampshire and all the others will vote. Maine has a caucus on the 8th of February. Things are changing and yet they remain the same. Today, Thursday, the Democrats in Oxford County will hold their caucus training at the Paris Town Office. It is at 5 p.m. For more information, call 875-2116.

David and I and his friend Martin viewed Alan Day's exhibit at Fare Share Commons. It is worth looking at. He will be talking about it at the commons on Friday, the 23rd at 7 p.m. For more information, call 743-0165.

The days are getting longer and that is good news to me. I like it better when there is more light. I do not think I could live in Alaska or one of the Scandinavian countries if there is no, or little, daylight. It's not just the cold, but the light gives one a sense of well-being. I guess I'd have to be taking a lot of Vitamin D pills.

Spoke with friend Sirii for the first time in a long time.

She is starting at UMF this week. That is exciting. We all wish her well. I hope she comes down for the Mountain Poets reading next week. Mountain Poets meet on Thursday, Jan 29, at 7 p.m. at Fare Share Commons in Norway. Those needing more information can call me at 743-0583 or George at 674-2500. All are welcome, and the more the merrier.

That is all for this week. I am off to tutor and to pay a few bills. Hope all have a great week.

on up to the resort on Thursday, Feb. 12, from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. to meet the new management team and check out their remodeled lodge.

Many thanks to Lucia Colombaro, Jeremy Stark and the team at Deximer for a wonderful Business after Hours there last week, and to all who turned out on one of the coldest evenings of the season. Refreshments, compliments of Café DiCocoa, warmed our bellies and delighted our palates.

The chamber recently played an advocacy role on behalf of the local snowmobile industry. We wrote a letter to Rep. Arlan Jodrey encouraging him to support L.D. 787, a bill that limits the liability of caretakers of snowmobile and hiking trails. It is our hope that the governor signs this bill into law immediately.

From the

Western Mountains Senior College

Rick Churchill will lead a snowshoe walk in the woods around the Sunday River Cross Country Ski Center on Feb. 1 at 2 p.m.

The walk is for members of the Western Mountain Senior College who would like to learn more about the woods in its winter mode.

Cost of the walk for members is $5, which will be collected prior to the start of the walk. Snowshoe rentals are available from the center. Interested members should call 824-3209 to reserve their place on the walk.

From the

Bethel Senior Citizens

The Bethel Senior Citizens Club met Jan. 14 at the Sudbury Inn for their meeting and luncheon with 31 members present. President Musa Brown conducted the meeting and led the salute to the flag. Reports were given by Jane Hosterman and Arlene Lowell. The door prize was won by Martha Sweatt and the raffle by Dorothy Bartlett. The speaker was Roderick Gordon, district representative of Modern Woodmen of America, which is a nonprofit organization. They have insurance for senior citizens, also investment programs.

The next meeting will be Feb. 11 at the West Parish Congregational Church. The meeting will start at 11 a.m. and the price of the dinner is $6. After the meal, members are invited to Gould Academy to see the play, "You Can't Take It With You," by the Drama Club. There was a discussion on where to hold the May and December meetings.

January birthdays are Donald Bennett, Mary Coltonick, Rudi Honkala, Jean Hutchins, Davene Mitchell, Wilbur Mitchell, Margaret Quinlan, Clara Rolfe and Drew Webster.

From the

Bethel Outing Club

Sunday was a great day of skiing at Black Mountain. The Maine Bill Koch Group said it was their largest race ever at Black Mountain, probably due to all the local Rumford, Mexico, Andover, and Bethel folks that were there.

There were about 60 participants total. Thanks to all the folks who headed over. It was a very well run and organized event. It was great to see all the BOC families — Babcock-Walkers, Savages, Haberman-Fakes, Gambles, Cramptons, Southams, Zurhorsts, Coopers, Keanes, Fessendens, etc.

Rob Yorkobaskas publishes a weekly state BKYSL newsletter in either e-mail form or hard copy. The cost is $5 for e-mail and $7 for hardcopy for the season. He publishes all race results as well as photos, stories, etc. His e-mail address is ryogy@aol.com and he is always interested in photos, ideas, or stories if you had some.

Fun at the Sunday River Inn — Dave and Kirk had a nice group at the Sunday River Inn: Rachel, Molly, Kendra, Andrew, and Zoey classical skiing and Elliot skating with Garry Grigel (Kirk's friend from Portland) and his son, Kyle, who is 9 but quite tough (skied the Rangeley 25k last year).

This week's schedule:

Wednesday, 3:30 p.m. at the Bethel Inn — the Telstar Middle School team may join us. Brad Clarke would like to classic ski Wednesday, but hasn't confirmed it with Telstar Middle School coach Steve Keane yet.

He would like to teach the kids how to kick wax their combi or skate skis in order to classic ski. The race on Sunday in Farmington is a classic race, so it will be great to get some practice in. If you have fish scalers, you could bring them as well.

Sunday local recreational option — 1 p.m. with Dave Bean and others at Carter's Cross Country Ski Center in Bethel. Dave's phone number is 824-0369 if you have questions, or weather concerns.

Sunday away race option — 12 noon, BKYSL Race at Titcomb Mountain in Farmington. Registration: 11 a.m. to noon. Classic style only. Adults may be interested in the Pine Tree Pursuit Race (1 a.m.), which is at Titcomb that same morning at 10 a.m. This race has two 5k legs in it (1st skate, then classic).

After your 5k skate you are seeded in the classic pursuit leg. The BKYSL race (noon) will follow the adult race at 10 a.m. (skate) and 11 a.m. (Classic). Clarke will head over early on Saturday, probably around 8 a.m. If anyone wants to carpool, etc., give him a ring. The BKSL race is $5 for kids as usual.

Here's the info off the Nensa site: 1/25/04, Pine Tree Pursuit Titcomb Mountain, Farmington Event Info: Same day pursuit. Mass start skate and classic pursuit start for Jr., Sr., and Masters. Start time: 10 a.m. skate, 11 a.m. classic. BKL event, 12 noon. Registration: $16 by 1/17/04 and $20 after/DOR. Checks to: Titcomb Mountain Ski Educational Foundation. Mail to: Farmington Ski Club, PO Box 138, West Farmington, ME 04992. Contact: (P) 778-9031.

From the

Oxford County Republicans

Randy Bumps, executive director of the Bush-Cheney '04 campaign, was featured speaker at the Jan. 13 meeting of the Oxford County Republican Committee at Franklin Grange in Bryant Pond. Following a social hour and dinner, Bumps made a power point presentation on the effort in Maine to capture the state for President Bush and aid in electing Republicans at all levels in Maine. He outlined the strategies for Republican victory in November. Bumps introduced Andrew Simon, a student at Bates College and the head of College Republicans in Maine. Simon has done an outstanding job in Androscoggin County in registering Republicans. Trevor Bragdon of Bangor, Second District coordinator was also introduced. State Senator Rick Bennett (R-Norway) will serve as regional chair for Bush-Cheney. Following Bumps' presentation, a brief business meeting was held. Chair Paul Billings of Bryant Pond announced the Lincoln Day Dinner will be held at the Bethel Inn on Feb. 28, with U.S. Senator Susan Collins as the featured speaker. Tom Winsor, Register of Probate, announced that he would be running for re-election and would be serving as e-mail chair for Oxford County in the upcoming election. Steven Merrill, County Commissioner, also announced he would be running for re-election. Diane Jackson, representing U.S. Olympia Snowe, reported on Senator Snowe's recent activities in Maine. Chuck Mahaleris, representing Senator Collins' Lewiston office, also reported on Maine's junior Senator's activities. Candidate recruitment activities were also discussed with Norm Ferguson reporting good progress. It was announced that at least two candidates would be running for the Second District nomination, businessman Bob Stone of Lewiston and Brian Hamel, president and CEO of Loring Development Authority.

State Committeewoman Becky Kendall of Bethel announced that caucus kits were now available. Feb. 8 and 29 were two days that several towns would be caucusing, but other dates would be equally acceptable. It was stressed that it was important all towns hold a caucus to elect representatives to the State Convention and to the County Committee. Representatives Heidrich, Hotham, Jodrey, Millett and Muse were unable to attend due to business in Augusta.

"My Puppa" by Rebecca Lynn Rivard

Like the warm and gentle breezes of summer, you faded into a mild fall and then to a barren winter.

But even in those cold days that would be an end, you brought love back into a family that loved you in return.

A bright light among mere men, you shine with the balance of a red Indian summer sunset.

Hands like leather that could turn to creamy butter in the instant of needed comfort. A man with much devotion to family, friends, and animals.

As a husband, father, grandfather, great-grandfather, and great-great-grandfather, you were the family's pillar of strength.

You will be sadly missed, but we know you are in a better place, so sleep my dearest Puppa, and feel no more pain, have no worries for we will all meet again.

There will not be any services at this time. Condolences may be expressed at www/FuneralAlternatives.net.
